THE PUBLIC SERVICE ENQUIRY.

THE Indian Civil Service owes its origin to the Marquis Cornwallis who was the first Governor-General to perceive that until its emoluments and duties were arranged upon a satisfactory basis charges of corruption and neglect would be levelled against it, while fortune-hunting through the avenues of private trade was an alluring pursuit to the ill-paid writers of his era. His predecessors, Clive and Hastings, had made what reforms were possible under the penurious policy of a Directorate whose principal objective was the receipt of large dividends, but to the Marquis belongs the credit of founding a service which has grown to its present dimensions from the modest personnel of his day, and is now recognised by expert critics who have viewed its achievements and organisation from all standpoints as one of the most perfect productions of human ingenuity. It has been appraised by many pens, both British and foreign, one of the most capable of its recent judges being M. Choilly who spent twenty years in perfecting his knowledge of Indian administration, while the accredited historian of the German Crown Prince's tour last year, has added his tributes of admiration for a Government which rules its many millions of subjects through the agency of some twelve hundred officials, whose sagacity, devotion and efficiency make this seemingly impossible task an easy and amazing accomplishment. The Service itself still lacks a biographer, for we have to trace its story and development through many volumes to gain some knowledge of what it has done for India. But perhaps, some day, it will be given the distinction of a separate history, for which there is ample material awaiting the advent of an industrious and qualified compiler.

From the handful of collectors and judges of Cornwallis's day, who were the earliest members of a "covenanted" service, has sprung the great administrative departments of to-day which have grown with the expansion of the Empire, and are now the channels though which official decisions and orders are conveyed to the people. They, in conjunction with the Civilian element of the machinery, form the "public service" which is about to be examined by a Royal Commission for the purpose of ascertaining the degree of safety to which the policy of "Home Rule" may be applied to the East. We have Lord Crewe's assurance that it is not contemplated to develop the provincial Governments into autonomous administrations, as assumed by some of the Indian patriotic parties, but he is apparently in sympathy with the Viceroy's definition of the situation, as set forth in one of the despatches on the changes announced at Delhi. According to this document it will be necessary to supplement the concessions made by Lord Minto's administration with further surrenders to Indian aspirations and the principal object of this enquiry is to discover how this may be done without an undue weakening of British control. It is the habit of the Congress to take credit for the modification of official policy which have occurred since its foundation into existence, but it may be pointed out that the initiative in regard to the increased employment of educated Indians was taken by the Government of India itself four years ago. When Lord Hardinge, Viceroy the first step in this direction was taken by a Parliamentary despatch authorising the appointment of qualified Indians to offices thitherto reserved for the Civil Service. It is probable that the new departure was not altogether approved by his immediate successors, as nine years were occupied in maturing a project which finally took shape in the Statutory Civil Service at the close of the seventies. But for reasons which we need not pause to consider the new service was not a success, and when Sir Charles Aitchison's Commission sat a few years later it was abolished on the recommendations of that enquiry which were accepted by Lord Dufferin's Government. The changes then introduced gave India three distinct services Civil, Provincial and Subordinate instead of the one body which had thitherto monopolised all the best appointments in the gift of Government and it may be mentioned that the Congress was then in its infancy and that Lord Dufferin, who was not in sympathy with its objects, was certainly not influenced by the annual declamations of its orators in his decision to open wider avenues of official employment to Indians.

The Public Service Commission of twenty-six years ago was the first step towards reforms which were carried out by progressive degrees under successive Viceroys, until the transformations effected by Lords Morley and Minto brought visions of self-government on to the political horizon, accompanied by fresh demands for higher, more responsible appointments for Indians. The results of these changes are too obvious to need recitation, but it may be pointed out that they have given a large preponderence to Indians in all branches of the public services and that if further concessions are now to be made the European element will cease to be an operative factor in the administration. There are already complaints of the declination of the Civil Service because it has lost its attractions for the higher type of British youths trained at the Public Schools and Universities, but if the present limitations in advancement and emoluments are to be enhanced by fresh reservation for Indians, we need not expect to witness any improvement in the number or qualifications of those appearing for the competitive examinations in London. We have had a great many suggestions during the past year or two for the betterment of a service which was believed to have reached perfection until the Decentralisation Commission discovered flaws in its methods and transfixed them in a report which was used as a basis for supplementary accusations by Indian critics. But if the doctrine of preference—which is being used by the Australian Caucus for political purposes—is to supersede the old standards of personal merit and experience, we need not concern ourselves with proposals for improving the British personnel of the service, because the best of our youths will certainly choose careers in avenues which are not encumbered by this precept. For all these reasons the excogitations of the Commission which is to sit in India before the close of the year will be awaited with some anxiety by those who believe that further surrenders to the Indian progressist parties cannot be made without serious danger to British dominancy, and it is to be hoped that its decisions will not be accepted until both the public and Parliament have been given opportunities of weighing their probable effect, before their application to the constructive policy outlined in the Viceroy's historic despatch.

Jubilee of the High Courts.

THE Bengal High Court is to celebrate its jubilee, though the occasion does not fall at a particularly auspicious time, as a new High Court for the province of Behar is in active contemplation and when that will be created the present Bengal Court will be sadly short of its present extensive jurisdiction. But the Bombay High Court may also celebrate its jubilee this year, as it was called into being by the same Act of Parliament, the Indian High Courts Act of 1861, which empowered the Sovereign to establish by letters patent High Courts of Judicature at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay. Thereupon the letters patent or charters, contemplated by this Act, were issued in 1862 to the new tribunals at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay. The date of the first charter of the Bengal High Court at Calcutta is 14th May, and the charters of the other two High Courts bear the same date, the twenty-sixth June, 1862. Thus last week the Bombay High Court completed fifty years of its existence by grant of Royal charter. It is rather odd that while the Chief Justice has not deemed the occasion worthy of commemoration even by an "At Home" the Chief Justice of Bengal should have seen fit to celebrate the event though the dark shadow of dismemberment hangs over his court. And we think on another ground the Bombay High Court is wise in not giving importance to its jubilee, for its creation fifty years ago lowered its dignity considerably as compared with the predecessor it superseded. The Supreme Court, which represented the majesty of law and justice in Bombay till 1862, was constituted of judges whose rank and dignity was much higher than the judges of the High Court, as will easily appear from the fact that all the judges of the old Supreme Court invariably received the honour of knighthood on their appointment and besides had a salute of guns like the Governor and members of Council. Of the present High Court even the Chief Justice has not the honour of a salute of guns. A writer of the middle of the last century thus describes the rank and status of the Supreme Court judges: "The Chief Justice takes local rank next to the Governor and is entitled to a salute of seventeen guns upon quitting or arriving at the Presidency with a stipend of £6,000 per annum. The Puisne judge takes rank after the civil members of Council, receives a salute of fourteen guns and a salary of £5,000 per annum. In the event of a judge dying within six months of his arrival in India, his heirs receive a gratuity of £10,000; if within twelve months, £5,000. The judges are not enthralled by any local authority and are amenable for their acts only to the Ministry at Home. They hold extraordinary powers which have been employed with singular exceptions with a moderation and consistency, worthy the spirit, the liberality and the independence of the brighest ornaments who have presided at Westminster Hall." It will be seen from this that the present judges created in 1862 are inferior in rank, status, dignity, and even pay and emoluments.

So much was this felt that Sir Joseph Arnould, who had been a Puisne Justice of the Supreme Court, had great hesitation in continuing in the same capacity in the newly created High Court. "It was his poverty consented, not his will," and he was the first Puisne Judge of the High Court till his retirement in 1869. Sir Richard Couch, who afterwards became Chief Justice, both here and in Calcutta, was the other Barrister Puisne Judge. Sir Mathew Sausse who had presided over the Supreme Court, also continued to preside over the High Court, though he had to forego his former salute of seventeen guns, a sad loss to his dignity. The old Supreme Court consisted of three judges including the Chief Justice; but the new High Court of 1862 had seven judges and the Act of 1861 gave power to the Secretary of State to appoint any number up to fifteen. This number was only last year increased to twenty by an Act to amend the one of 1861. The doubling of the number of judges of the Supreme Court was necessitated by the amalgamation of the old Company's courts and Adaluts into the High Court. These Adalut judges were civil servants of the Company; home civilians also got places as judges in the High Court which was a fusion of the SupremeCourt and the Company's Adaluts. The present three barrister judges are the successors of judges of the old Supreme Court, while the same number of civilian judges represent the old Adalut judges who had their status somewhat raised when they were nominated Puisne judges of the High Court. The creation of the High Courts in supersession of the Supreme Courts was long contemplated and became necessary when India was transferred to the Crown in 1858. The Supreme Court judges derived their authority directly from the Crown, while the Adalut judges were nominated by the Company. On the extinction of the latter they also came to be nominated by the Crown, and their fusion with the other was deemed advisable. The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court survives in the Original Side of the High Court, while that of the Adaluts is represented by the Appellate Side. This jurisdiction of the present High Court is more extensive no doubt, but the rank and status of its judges is inferior to those of the old Supreme Court, and they rather require to be commiserated than congratulated upon the passing of an Act fifty years ago by which they were shorn of some of the dignity of their predecessors.

Dealing with the Suffragettes.

"MR. PETHICK LAWRENCE has been released from prison"—"Suffragettes are indulging in wide-spread window smashing." These messages have reached us on succeeding days, and furnish us with proof that extreme leniency and forbearance will have no effect in changing the methods and tactics of the hooligan-party in the Women's Rights movement. The gentle lady who assaulted the Prime Minister appears to have been roughly handled, the while she was being ejected from the "private reception," and most people will be inclined to regret that the complaint she has made regarding the treatment meted out to her did not cover a wider range of grievances. The women's militant movement has gone far enough. Already, it has involved British womanhood in ridicule and disgrace on the Continent, and the time has come when it should be grappled with and scotched, and to accomplish this purpose we cannot think of any plan too drastic to be justified by the circumstances. When women are convicted of lawlessness and sentenced to imprisonment they should be treated as ordinary criminals, and in dealing with hunger-strikers the authorities should first ask themselves, "What would we do if these women were criminals convicted of larceny or similarly sordid offences?" We find it difficult to believe Mr. McKenna's explanation that Mrs. Pankhurst and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence were released on grave medical grounds. Why then was Mr. Lawrence released? It comes to this, that any number of women may break the law with the previous knowledge that they can escape punishment by starving themselves. A more absurd position it is impossible to imagine, even in the wildest flights of comic opera, and the sooner it is ended the better it will be for British dignity.

Suffragettes and the Fitness of Things.

WE cannot sympathise much with the suffragette who gained a certain amount of notoriety—at considerable cost—at Queen Anne's Gate on Friday. There was nothing original in the idea of addressing Mr. Asquith, seizing him by the coat, or even in shaking him. But there was something original in the idea of donning a gold watch and a diamond brooch, when setting forth to tackle him. It was to some extent an outward declaration and guarantee that she was well-to-do and presumably respectable, and therefore might be regarded as a first-class misdemeanant and lightly handled accordingly. Unfortunately for her, however, the device failed. As Mr. Dooley would say, she was "thrun out," nearly killed, she complained; she lost her diamond brooch, and her gold watch was smashed. The lesson of this incident serves but to prove how utterly incapable Suffragettes are of undertaking serious responsibilities. A woman who sallies forth, intent upon a "scrap," wearing a gold watch and a diamond brooch, has no sense of the fitness of things; she would go to Parliament in a peignoir and pyjamas.

THE HUNGARIAN DIET.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, JUNE 15.

At Weimar on Sunday, in the presence of the Grand Duke Wilhelm Ernst, representatives of the Ministry of Marine and other official personages, the semi-official Navy League held its annual meeting. Since the new Navy Act does not satisfy the League's demand for large cruisers, it was inevitable that Admiral von Koester should refer to this point in his address, which always forms the chief feature of these gatherings. For reasons, the nature of which is not indicated in the lengthy reports in the Press, no resolution was submitted to the meeting, and he could, therefore, afford to be exorbitant in his claims, and he expressed the opinion that his audience would not be excessive if they asked that five more armoured cruisers and 5,000 additional personnel should be added to the fleet before 1917. He suggested that the necessary funds could, in case of need, be raised by a national subscription similar to that which had just placed three-quarters of a million sterling at the disposal of the Swedish Government for naval purposes. This proposal, like all the others which he put forward, was enthusiastically applauded by his hearers, who also laughed appreciatively when he told them that they "would have formed their own judgment as to our relationship to England." The Minister-President of Saxe-Altenburg, Herr von Borries likewise declared himself dissatisfied with the provisions of the Navy Act. The general impression left by the gathering is, however, that Admiral Koester has received a hint not to overexert himself just at present. The "Vossische Zeitung" is a good deal perturbed by his speech which it thinks foreshadows plans that must intensify the political uncertainty, cause grave economic injury, and bring the finances of the empire once more into confusion." But even if such schemes are contemplated, Admiral Tirpitz has long ago taken the measure of the inconsequential politicians for whom this Radical paper speaks, and in the future, as in the past, they will have no convictions of their own left the moment he tries his persuasions upon them. Consequently, what the "Vossische" says on this subject cannot be said to matter.

The "Reichsbote," a Conservative paper which is not, it may be remarked, a reputed source of authentic novelties, prints the following cryptic hint at fresh army and navy bills: As we hear from a trustworthy quarter, the further development of the organisation of the defence forces was by no means closed with the passing of the defence bills. It lies within the region of possibility that in none too distant a time the Defence League and the Navy League will see themselves in a position to carry on their work of enlightenment with particular energy in the interests of the safety of the Empire. To what fields the development of the organisation of the army and navy will extend has not, up to the present, come to the cognisance of wider circles.

RUSSIAN NAVAL PLANS.

At last the Budget Commissioner of the Russian Duma has settled the much-debated question of granting the sum of 502 million roubles for the new and extended programme of naval construction having passed it in principle by twenty-six votes against nineteen. No time limit, however, seems to have been fixed for its fulfilment, and the vote has yet to come before the full Duma. For the present year's credit of 10,000,000 roubles is to be granted. The discussion was hurried to its close late last night by the Premier, M. Kokovtsoff, before he started for Moscow. The proceedings as regards the details of the bill and the naval programme are kept strictly secret, but one member observed that the particulars of all the proposed vessels had already been published in a German naval reference book. Besides representatives of the Opposition, several moderate Octobrists voted against the bill, including the leader, M. Gutchkoff, who deprecated any entrenchment upon resources needed for the development of the country. M. Kokovtsoff answered that ample means would be forthcoming for all purposes, in view of the reform of taxation, the introduction of an income-tax, and the new death duties, which the Government were determined to pass through the next Duma. The most important speech was made by M. Sazonoff, Minister of Foreign Affairs, in calling attention to the necessity of providing for the defence of the Baltic, in which connection he referred to possible complications, to hostility being worked up against Russia in Sweden, and to a pamphlet published by M. Sven Hedin. In reply to a remark by M. Gutchkuff, that Russia had allies, M. Sazonoff said her relations with England had not yet been brought to such a degree of formal agreement, of course, there was an alliance with France, but the best way to depend upon allies was to look after oneself. M. Sazonoff concluded by saying that Russia must be prepared for the possibility of even a coalition of Powers. Admiral Grigorovitch, Minister of Marine, was persuaded by Baron Meyendorff, on behalf of offended Russian subjects of German descent, to withdraw the passage referring to the danger of the latter siding with Germany in case of war. The admiral explained that the objectionable passage alluded rather to the Finns than to the Persian Germans in the Baltic provinces. Fortunately for Admiral Grigorovitch's peace of mind, there were, of course, no Finnish representatives present.

FRANCE AND MOROCCO.

The Parliamentary report upon the treaty between France and Morocco, granting to the former the Protectorate over the latter, is published to-day. The bulk of the documents have only a technical interest. Muley Hafid's shrewd bargainings about his wives and sons and goods and chattels in the arrangements made with the French Government to ensure his status under the new regiment of the Protectorate are curious, because they prove him a canny, hard-headed business man; but one of his letters to M. de Selves, when he was French Foreign Secretary last autumn, stands out from the others. It has not only picturesqueness but philosophy and a literary flavour. An Arabic saying runs thus: "He who hears is far other than he who sees," and one cannot cast doubt upon that truth. Our Majesty is of the number of those who keenly wish to pass from the region of hearsay to that of seeing with one's own eyes. Now what has come to our ears anent the lands of Europe would almost belong to the class of things which we doubt, were it not that we are convinced of the sincerity of those who inform us, and assured that the conquest of science may not be set in doubt, nor its logical deductions stricken with barrenness. For these reasons the desires of our Majesty solicited us often to displace ourselves towards those regions where the sun of knowledge first rose, but these projects were not fulfilled. Now, however, that an exact agreement is registered with your glorious Government, and that the obstacles with which the road to that end bristled have been laid low, the desires of our Majesty once more tend towards that project which we have determined to fulfil next May. We intend, first, to proceed to the Capital Paris, for it seems that there is united all that is scattered elsewhere. We have informed you, M. le Ministre, of our intentions, well knowing with what satisfaction you will learn of our proposed arrival in Paris, and that a welcome worthy of our Shereefian Majesty will be reserved to us in your glorious capital. We do not doubt that your glorious Government will procure us opportunities of rejoicing and of congratulation. Remain in good health. Unfortunately the French Government learnt of the Sultan's intentions without any satisfaction at all, and up to the present Muley Hafid, on his voyage from the region of hearsay to that of things seen, has got only as far as Rabat, and whether he will ever come to Paris is doubtful. The French Government is afraid of being accused by the Moors of kidnapping their Sultan.

SEVERE TRIPOLI FIGHTING.

General Caneva has sent the following telegraphic details of Sunday's fight near Sargar-road, Gargaresh:—"At five o'clock the Giardina column came into touch with the enemy concealed in deep trenches. Supported by artillery, the column carried the successive lines in a series of splendid bayonet charges. The enemy's trenches were found full of dead bodies. At 7-30 a furious attack resulted in our occupying the position of Sidi Abd-el-Gilil. The Rainaldi column also advanced against a long trench occupying a commanding position, and a brilliant bayonet charge led to the capture of this the chief line of the enemy's defences. A very large number of Turkish and Arabian corpses were found here. At 7-30 other bodies of the enemy, numbering altogether several thousands, made a violent attack on Gargatesh, and the left flank of the Camerana Division. The enemy's attack was repulsed, and at noon the enemy fell back on all sides except on the eastern border of the Zanzur oasis. The Rainaldi Brigade then again assumed the offensive, and drove the enemy from their positions, following them for several miles. By 2-45 the enemy were in full flight on all sides. Towards four o'clock in the afternoon, large detachments of the enemy again began to appear. These were stopped and dispersed by the Montuori Brigade and a brigade of cavalry. At 5 p.m. the battle was completely ended everywhere, and our troops remained on the conquered positions absolutely commanding the oasis of Zanzur. The enemy's losses, calculated on the basis of the bodies found, exceeded 1,000 killed. The number of their wounded is not known, but was certainly enormous. Our losses were one officer, 19 men, and 10 Ascaris killed; 8 officers, 182 men, and 70 Ascaris wounded."

TURKISH RESERVES CALLED OUT.

The situation in Constantinople remains unchanged, and the efforts of the Turkish Government are exclusively directed to the double object, first of obtaining the funds necessary to the carrying on of the public services and for the expenses of the war, and the second place to guard against an eventual Italian attack upon Continental Turkey. The negotiations with the bank for a fresh advance of £2,500,000 although not yet officially concluded, are about to terminate. The Government also reckons on the possibility of a new advance by the Tobacco Regie, although the Ministry adheres to its decision, not to renew the Regie's concession, but to institute a State monopoly. In all probability the Minister of Finance will this week bring forward a bill sanctioning a war tax, consisting, as I said in a previous telegram, of the addition of a few centimes to the several existing imposts, among which may already be mentioned the property tax, the patent tax, the tax paid by those excused military service, and a 5 per cent. levy upon all military and civil official salaries, except the pay of the private soldiers. The despach of troops, both in the direction of Gallipoli, as a precaution against an Italian landing in the Gulf of Saros, and towards Smyrna, is so great that all the reserves have been called under arms. A letter received to-day from Smyrna states that soldiers are pouring into that place. It is reported that the reclosing of the Dardanelles is imminent. This rumour has become so persistent that it has given rise to the issue of special instructions from Lloyd's. I am, however, able to announce that down to the present this measure has not been contemplated by the Government.

COUNT TISZA SHOT AT.

The climax to the troubled scenes in the Hungarian Parliament came on Friday week when M. Julius Kavocs, an Opposition deputy, fired several shots at Count Tisza, the Speaker, though without hitting him, and then shot himself. The sitting began with the usual expulsion of noisy members, 57 of whom were removed by a large body of police, whereupon the rest of the Opposition left the Chamber.

At this juncture M. Kovacs, who had been suspended a fortnight ago for overturning the voting urn when Count Tisza was elected Speaker, forced his way on to the floor of the House through the Press gallery, shouting, "One of us is still here." He then raised his arm and fired several shots from a revolver, the bullets lodging in the woodwork of the tribune. Members of the Government party rushed at Kovacs to lynch him, many drawing revolvers themselves from their pockets, but he found time to fire two more shots, one of which went through his temple, and fell [illegible] Count Tisza had risen, pale but [illegible] the regrettable act of a madman who [illegible] has put himself beyond the reach of avenging justice. Before passing to the order of the day, we can only give expression to the feelings of pity which the conduct and sad [illegible] of this unhappy fellow-creature awaken in [illegible] Count Tisza's wife who was in the ladies gallery opposite the Speaker's chair, had witnessed the attempt and fainted already, but she kept her place. [illegible] went to assure her that [illegible] was carried out, leaving a pool of blood where Kovacs had remained through [illegible] sitting. His condition is very grave, the brain is injured. An [illegible] performed and the bullet [illegible] but it is hardly expected [illegible] Kovacs, who is aged 51, is [illegible] He is a man of passion [illegible] the foremost of the obstructionists in the House. He will two days ago. Another revolver bullet was afterwards found in the Chamber, and it is believed that one of the deputies must have fired at Kovacs in the first excitement.

COUNT TISZA'S CALMNESS.

It is reported that M. Kovacs inquired of his brother, who had been allowed to visit his bedside, about Count Tisza's condition. On being told that Count Tisza was unharmed, M. Kovacs said, "Now I can die in peace, as I shall not die the Border's murderer." He declared while on his way to Parliament, "If I succeed in getting into the House, I will not leave it alive." M. Kovacs, it appears, was in very distressed circumstances, and a petition in bankruptcy is said to have been lodged against him. When the House resumed business Count Khuen-Hedervary, the ex-premier, said: "The minutes of to-day's proceedings would be incomplete if they did not contain an expression of indignation and horror aroused by [illegible] upon our honoured President [illegible] Providence, for the fortunate escape of this eminent man, who, in the service of the Fatherland, has been exposed to the danger of falling a victim to a dastardly attempt upon his life, which is only explicable as an act of madness. [illegible] to give special expression to our admiration for the heroic calm displayed by Count Tisza in this fateful moment." Count Khuen-Hedervary's remarks were repeated by [illegible] cheers for Count Tisza, and all the ministers on the House rose to their feet and cheered again and again.

BRITISH LAND REFORM.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE'S GREAT CAMPAIGN.

Huge Guarantee Fund Collected.

AMBULANCES FOR MALE SUFFRAGISTS.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, JUNE 30.

Mr. Lloyd George last night addressed a demonstration of five thousand people at Woodford, where a dozen male suffragists were violently ejected, and were treated by ambulances.

Mr. Lloyd George denounced the cowardice of those, who were engineering the opposition to the Insurance Bill. They were really starting a new anarchist movement, and seemed to think that laws were devised to protect their property, privileges and sport, and to keep the workers in order. It was a dangerous moment at which to teach such doctrines, and teachers of them were sowing a crop, which they might reap in tears a few years hence. There was a bigger task in front of the democracy than they had yet undertaken, namely the freeing of the land from the shackles of feudalism. The Insurance Bill was but the beginning.

Mr. Ellis Griffith, speaking at Pwllheli last night, said the Government would shortly submit to the country the frame-work of their proposals for housing and land reform.

The papers state that a huge guarantee fund has been accumulated for Mr. Lloyd George's land campaign in the autumn, which will include a minimum wage for agricultural labourers, the establishment of land courts to fix rents and terms of tenancies, and an extensive scheme for rural housing.

LONDON, JUNE 29.

NATIVE AFFAIRS IN AFRICA.

Severe Rebuke of Private Members.

LONDON, JUNE 30.

Lord Loths' delivered an out-spoken address yesterday. He strongly condemned certain private members' speeches on South African affairs, especially native affairs, in the Imperial Parliament, which people in other parts of the world could not realise the effect which such remarks had on the people of South Africa.

The Union Parliament was the only place, where the grievances of South Africa should be submitted and heard.

TURCO-ITALIAN WAR.

Flanking Movement Destroys Turkish Base.

ROME, JUNE 28.

Fierce fighting has taken place at Buchamez. The Italians, at dawn, supported by artillery, attacked 6,000 Turks, who were entrenched at Sidi Said. They drove them out of the trenches. The Turks left five hundred dead.

Simultaneously, the Italians executed a flanking movement and rushed and destroyed the base camp of the Turks.

The Italian casualties were 20 killed and 112 wounded.

ROME, JUNE 29.

The news of the Italian victory at Sidi Said was hailed with immense enthusiasm and scenes of patriotic fervour in Parliament.

ROME, JUNE 30

An official telegram states that fighting was renewed at Sidi Said on the 28th instant. Masses of Turks and Arabs, who had been heavily reinforced, were discovered in deep entrenchments. The whole of the Italian division bombarded their position, assisted by three warships, and then assaulted it at the point of the bayonet. The Turks were routed and left two hundred dead. The Italians had ten killed, and 78 wounded.

A corrected list of Italian dead in the fighting on the 27th places the number at twenty-nine.

26 FRUITLESS BALLOTS.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

BALTIMORE, JUNE 29.

The Convention last night continued monotonously balloting for six candidates. The figures of the eighth ballot, announced about midnight, were Clark, 448, and Wilson, 351. The others were insignificant.

Mr. Wilson has gained only a dozen votes as compared with the first ballot.

BALTIMORE, JUNE 29.

The figures at the tenth ballot this morning were Clark, 556, and Wilson, 350. Ninety votes of the New York delegates went to Mr. Clark, resulting in a demonstration lasting half an hour. Mr. Clark's supporters marched in procession round the hall with banners and bands. The Convention has adjourned.

It is announced that the Democratic platform denounces high import tariffs as causing an unequal distribution of wealth and a high cost of living, and favours immediate revision. It proposes criminal prosecutions under the Anti-Trust Law and favours a single Presidential term.

MR. BRYAN'S DARING SPEECH.

BALTIMORE, JUNE 29.

Yesterday's suspension of the rules, including the two-thirds majority rule, is merely temporary, and applied only to the business of the moment.

There are conflicting opinions about Mr. Bryan's audacious attack, on the moneyed interests, which his enemies describe as the cardinal mistake of his career.

His friends say it is the bravest thing he ever did. His speech failed to "stampede" the Convention, which proceeded to listen all through the night to speeches in connection with the nominations.

BALTIMORE, JUNE 30.

The Democratic Convention adjourned at eleven o'clock last night until Monday, after twenty-six fruitless ballots. The figures of the final ballot were Clark, 467, Wilson. 405.

Some of the Maryland delegates went over to the latter. The adjournment was precipitated by the news that Mr. Clark had entrained at Washington for Baltimore, to appear before the Convention and reply to the aspersions of Mr. Bryan.

BALTIMORE, JUNE 30.

Fourteen ballots have hitherto taken place without result. Mr. Bryan denounced the support of Mr. Clark by the New York delegates, saying that the latter were representing the moneyed interests.

The statement that Lieut. S. O. Robinson, of the 13th Hussars, had shot an elephant and a bison in the Mysore jungles without a license, and that his rifles and trophies had been seized is authoritatively denied, that officer being away in England. This he killed in self-defence. The bison trophies he obtained in Coorg. Far from seizing anything of Mr. Robinson's, the Mysore Government, having satisfied themselves that the tusker was a rogue, have permitted him to retain the tusks.

THE ZAKKA KHELS.

Hostilities Likely to Break out.

A WAR OF VENGEANCE.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, JUNE 30.

A frontier correspondent states that the Zakka Khels are in a somewhat excited state, as the result of a treacherous murder of one of their clan. It appears that Usman Khan, a notorious free-booter, who was enjoying an allowance from Kabul, was received as a guest by Yar Mahomed Khan, of Chura, south of the Khyber. Yar Mahomed may be remembered as the Malikdin Malik, who gave considerable help to the expedition into the Zakka Khel country. In 1908, Usman Khan was shot dead by some unknown person while at Chura, the outcome, doubtless, of a blood-feud. The Zakka Khels are now said to have appealed to Syed Akbar, the well known Mullah of Tirah, to sanction the punishment of Yar Mahomed, and hostilities will probably break out.

While they were separating them, the boat tilted over, and precipitating the occupants into the Ganges. Two of them, Privates Guaesant and Turner were unfortunately drowned.

EN PASSANT.

A Bishop on the Labour Question.

Our more eminent Divines happily give politics a wide berth. They are only in evidence, where the issues of party threaten institutions and principles, in which they are interested through their calling, or on conscientious grounds. Social questions, however, are becoming more frequently an object of thought and practical energy among an increasing section of the Established Church, and signs are not wanting that the time-worn ultra-Tory principles are becoming elements of the past among leaders thereof. The "Western Mail" of Cardiff publishes in a recent issue a very thoughtful article on the causes of Labour unrest by the Bishop of Llandaff, which differs from the majority of essays on leading subjects of the day in advancing a remedy rather than leaving off at the point of animadversion and mere theorising. This learned and open-minded divine points out among other truisms that Labour unrest is not exclusively a thing of to-day but, is the proverbial exposition of history with the difference that whereas up heavals of the past were due in the greater measure to oppression, the turning as it were of the worm. The element of to-day arises from the narrowing of the ways between the relative status of citizens of all ranks owing to education on the one hand, and the monopoly in practical productive skill and exclusive physical fitness for labour on the other. "He that is robbed, not wanting what is lost, let him not know it and he's not robbed at all" might to some extent be applied to the average toiler of these times. Nor would he have lived to realise that he was being deprived of possible rights had Capitalists, or the upper classes of half a century ago been a far-seeing generation. Then was the time, if ever, to have laid the foundation of national content, in connection with Capital and Labour, upon which a lasting system of adjustment might have been erected as opposed to the present jerry patch-work the result of too-often mere agitators and office seekers.

The learned authority quoted aptly remarks that some leading expressions of interested persons become mere 'catch-words' when inadvisedly used, as they so often are. Circumstances materially alter the definition of such familiar terms as living-wage, capital, competition, and it is meet, he infers, that the exact meaning, according to the would-be user, of these idioms should be made clear. For instance if at all times the term, Capital, was pre-supposed to be co-operative rather than antagonistic to Labour a great quid pro quo would be established. Both would exist, as it is put, to provide the necessaries of life and to promote the general welfare of the whole community, for the interests of Labour cannot be promoted by injury to Capital any more than the interests of Capital can be advanced by taking Labour at a lower estimation of its true value."

The reverend gentleman briefly dismisses the theories of Socialism and Syndicalism (as generally understood) as inconsistent the one with the other, and neither adaptable to any universal scheme for the harmonious blending of the interests of the two great communities referred to. He considers that the most hopeful remedy lies in the principle of "profit-sharing", and he cites as examples several large societies where the scheme is successfully working, a fact demonstrated to the greater extent by the prosperity and contentment of employes. It may be consistently held that leaders of Trade Unions have been too prone to dwell upon the contrast in mere luxuries between the classes representing Capital on the one hand and Labour on the other, rather than to urge thrift and providence. The surplus of the labourer is too often applied first to what may be termed "luxury", which is capital unemployed. The employer on the other hand makes his investments the means of providing his luxuries. Apart from the personal savings of the artisan, it is incidentally suggested that the funds of trade federations and unions might be more universally invested in. Industries thereby endowing them with living controlling power. A propaganda on these lines might at the present time when a large section of Labour is tiring of the ineptitude of leaders might—and when the next boom of industrial prosperity obtains—take a firm hold of the minds of the working man. As we know there are rumours of greater Party combination among Conservatives of the working classes, who are intuitively opposed to the reckless creed of extremists among their nominal representatives.

"One woe truly treads on another's heels" and it is apparent that England does not stand where she did as the great factor in Mediterranean naval strength. The recent decision of Germany to form a third high sea squadron is held to have a greater far-reaching motive than the late familiar augmentations of her fleet, and the immediate future should show how Britain proposes to secure both the predominance of strength in the North Sea (the vital necessity), and arrange for the invulnerability of our interests in Egypt, and what is more to the point, the route to India. The meeting arranged on the spot between our responsible administrators, though not the signal for the vapourings of mere alarmists, has demonstrated that prompt action has been found necessary for the immediate safeguarding of Britain's position and prestige. The country happily feels a confidence in the present controller of its first line of defence that has not been excelled of late years, and that is a great point gained. If the immediate future demands that a whole squadron of battle-ships must be put on the stocks to ensure the continuance of Britain's power and status the spirit of the country will undoubtedly rise to the occasion. The fortuitous appointment of Lord Kitchener to Egypt possibly nipped in the bud a movement that might have been revolutionary in the event of a weakening tendency in the status quo, which may arise as a result of continental complications ever looming on the horizon. It seems to be the opinion of a few, and I have at hand the views expressed by Mr. Charles Woods in a London daily, that the Ottoman power is not quite the doubtful quantity usually said, and that it would not be slow to attempt to regain its prestige in Egypt were Britain engaged in a continental war. This authority considers that such a scheme would be much facilitated by an advance from Syria, where, it is said, the nucleus of a well-trained army may be found. In this connection additional danger is threatened should the Bagdad-Syrian Railway systems be linked up. The question, as a whole, is undoubtedly engaging serious reflection in the diplomatic world.

LE TAILLEUR.

POPULATION OF CALCUTTA.

Some Curiosities of the Census.

SHORTAGE OF WOMEN.

The constitution of the population of the city of Calcutta is different from that of any other city in India, writes Dr. Frederick Pearse, Health Officer of Calcutta, in the "Statesman." The total as given in the revised Census is 896,067, but the extraordinary feature is that of this total no less than 607,674 were males and that there are only 288,393 females. In plain language there are more than two males to each female.

A second peculiar feature is that the male population between the ages of 15 and 50 years forms nearly half of the whole population of the city, viz., 440,040 out of the total of 896,067. At these ages there are only 83,182 females. A third peculiar feature is the small proportion of children. There are recorded 197,580 children under 15 years of age, whereas if the population of Calcutta were constituted similarly to that of the Province of Bengal, the number would be 345,703, In fact only 22 per cent. of the population of Calcutta are children, whereas in Bengal, the children under 15 years of age constitute 38 per cent. During the past ten years the growth of the population by 48,271 has been almost entirely in persons under 40 years of age. The female population has increased by only 3,193, but the increase of males of working ages, viz., from 15-50 years, has been no less than 41, 701.

The peculiar constitution of the population is evidently due to the large immigration of working males. The total number of males at working ages many from 15 to 50, is 440,040, whereas if the distribution of the population were the same as in Bengal, there would be only 220,701 males at these ages. We find that after about the age of 30 years large numbers of the males leave the city. The rapid reduction in numbers at the ages of 30 and 40 and, again at 40 and 50 (especially the latter) indicates this. There are none of these great differences as regards the female sex, although a considerable number of women between the ages of 15 and 20 evidently come into the city, because the female population of the ages 15 to 20 and 20 to 30 increases with each decade rather than decreases, as it naturally would without immigration. It is worth noting that while in Bengal the sexes are about equal in number the females in Calcutta constitute only 32'1 of the population. Again, while the females in Bengal between the ages of 15 and 45 (the child bearing period) form 22 per cent of the population, in Calcutta the females at these ages only form 17 per cent of the total population—a vast difference and one which very greatly influences the birth-rate of the city.

It has not I think, been previously noticed that the whole of the increase of the population since the last Census is amongst the Hindus—every other class having diminished. The increase of the Hindus amounts to 57,649.

To show the large amount of immigration into the city it will suffice to say that in addition to the increase of population since 1901, of 48,271 persons, there have been during the past 10 years 287,673 deaths but only 160,485 births leaving a balance of 126,188 to be made up. We have had, therefore, at the lowest estimate 174,459 immigrants to the city during the past ten years. This, however, only indicates the numbers who come to stay. Over and above all this the changes each year must be very great, as we know from other sources of information that thousands and thousands come into the city for a short period only."

The peculiar constitution of the population of Calcutta largely affects both the death-rate and the birth-rate. We congratulate ourself on the low death-rate for 1911, of 27·2 per 1,000. This is because it is the lowest death-rate calculated in the regular way ever recorded. It is not, however, the true death-rate. To find this out we have to take a standard population and calculate with the death-rates at the different age periods in Calcutta, what the mortality would amount to. With the small number of infants whose mortality is high, and with the large population of young working men whose mortality is low, we ought to have a low death-rate in Calcutta. The correction of the usually recorded rate shows that the true death rate in Calcutta during 1911 was 31·5 and not 27·2 per 1,000. It is not only by correction with standard population that we can properly compare one city with another, or a city with a rural area.

On the other hand, the peculiar constitution of our city population lowers the birth-rate. There were in 1911 a total of 19,515 registered births. If we calculate the birth-rate in the ordinary way we get only 21·7 per 1,000, but taking a standard population with the females aged 15 to 45 forming a regular and natural percentage, we find that the birth-rate in Calcutta is equivalent to 28·1 per 1,000. All of the excess of males in the Calcutta population artificially lowers the birth rate as calculated in the ordinary crude way. Moreover, if in a particular population there are fewer women between the ages of 15 and 45 than in an average population, it is obvious that there will be fewer births. Such is the case with Calcutta as instead of having 205,000 females at these ages as it would have if its population were constituted like Bengal, there are only 152,887 females at such ages. The low birth-rate of Calcutta is thus fully explained.

A further peculiar feature shown by the Census is that the number of British subjects has not increased.

He was ordered to undergo one days' imprisonment and to pay a fine of Rs. 10 or in default 10 days' rigorous imprisonment.

FOOTBALL IN BOMBAY.

Artillery's Narrow Win over Athletic.

R. G. A. 2; BOMBAY ATHLETIC, 1.

The Royal Garrison Artillery had an anxious time during their Harwood League match on Saturday, for it was not until only ten minutes remained for play that the Gunners scored twice in quick succession and so snatched a victory. Their opponents were the Bombay Athletic Club, whose many supporters on the stand were naturally keenly disappointed. One was glad to notice that the improved football, which we are seing this season, is beginning to attract the crowd, and the stand on Saturday afternoon was much better filled than it has been on many occasions this season. Unfortunately the football, which was shown in this match was not of a very high standard, for, although there was a very exciting finish, most of the game, when the Gunners had the better of it but could not score, was a bit dull.

Both ends of the game were marked by scoring, the Athletic Club's only goal being scored within two minutes of the start, by Woodford, the centre forward, with a moderately long and fast shot. The Athletic kept up an attack for some minutes, and both Brewin and Hogan gave the soldiers' goal-keeper work to do. The Gunners were not very long, however, before they took their turn and White passing inwards, Captain Roche, who had come into the team at centre-forward, gave Rockley a stiff shot. White seemed to be going to score, when Chapman managed to get over and take the ball just in time. Rockley again had some difficulty with a hot shot from Bakewell. The Gunners kept up a close attack until the interval, when the score still remained—

Bombay Athletic..... 1

More good shooting by the Gunners marked the opening of the second half, Howe making a very creditable effort from an awkward angle. Then for the Athletic, Barnard, receiving the ball from Woodford, just missed the goal, while Hyde for the Gunners on the other hand shot very wide with an open goal before him. The Gunners were very near to scoring however on several occasions but most people had given up hopes for them when Roche received a pass with only Rockley to beat. He put the ball into the top of the net with a stiff shot, which Rockley could not possibly save, and almost immediately afterwards Thompson headed the winning goal.

Bombay Gymkhana "B" vs. Young Hindus.

The cricket match, which had been arranged to take place on Saturday afternoon between the "A" team of the Bombay Gymkhana and the St. Xavier's College team, was not played, as the Gymkhana ground was not fit to play.

A match was on Saturday afternoon played between the "B" team of the Bombay Gymkhana and the Young Hindu Cricket Club on the Marine Lines ground. The Gymkhana scored 108 and the Young Hindus, 101. For the Gymkhana Stileman, Reid and Wagstaff reached double figures, and Wagstaff unfortunately was bowled by Kirtikar, just as he seemed to be getting set. With six wickets down the Young Hindus had only 22 runs to their credit. Dalvi, however, scored rapidly and made 47. Patil also showed good form for his 22. For the Gymkhana Wagstaff took four wickets for 17 runs. The following are the scores :—

UNITED STATES AND CHINA.

JAPANESE COMMENT.

The Osaka "Asahi Shimbun" recently printed an interesting examination of the advance of America in China, and drew the moral that the United States, by assuming the role of friendship for China, was ousting Japan from the position of guide, philosopher, and friend, which by geographical, literary, and commercial rights should be hers. The "Asahi" said:

Ten years ago Americans secured the rights for the construction of the Hankow-Canton Railway and of other lines; this and the re-enaction of the anti-immigration laws against Chinese aroused fierce opposition and brought about a boycot of American commerce throughout the country. This resulted in a complete setback for American enterprize. Nevertheless new opportunities were sought, and soon Yuan Shi-kai was won over. Tang visited America on a mission, and the Chino-American Alliance was mooted. The goodwill of the Chinese was gained. Then came the American proposal to neutralise the Manchurian railways, and on the refusal of this by Russia and Japan a loan was offered, and it was decided to return the Boxer indemnity. Again to secure the goodwill of the Chinese the interest on the indemnity was appropriated for the establishment of American schools for students. As a result a great majority of the Chinese believe that American co-operation is necessary for the accomplishment of anything. The United States having no territorial concessions and no geographical facilities has assumed the political and financial guidance of China. She has offered to furnish the capital for the exploitation of Liaotung—in return for rights. She has organised a loan syndicate of English, German, French, and American bankers, and assumed dol. 50,000,000 of the total amount. By bold and skilful diplomacy she has outmanoeuvred Japan, Russia, and England, whose rights and interests are predominant, and forced them to take a back seat. In the revolution, when the Japanese and English diplomatists were so circumspect as to incur the annoyance of the Chinese, the United States, by clever diplomacy, kept on the best of terms with the North and the South. When the Emperor abdicated the United States was sympathetic. Then, when the Republic was declared, it was America who came forward with the proposal that the Powers should help the new Republic to the restoration of order in China. America, to our astonishment, has succeeded in convincing China that it is she who is labouring to help her in her distress.

Mr. Colhoun, the American Minister, is a lawyer and has no other record behind him. He is rapidly making one as a diplomatist. The United States has vastly improved her position in China, and under the Republic will succeed even more, and it is probable that she will become China's guide. The new Cabinet is pro-American. Yuan once tried to form an American Alliance, and it was to Tang he entrusted the work. The Minister of State are equally pro-American. Hsiung-Hsi-ling, the Minister of Finance, encouraged American financiers, to provide the funds for the development of Manchuria so as to checkmate the aggression of Russia and Japan. He will turn to America again now. The new officials are mostly of American education. The forceful American representative, Mr. Calhoun, is strongly backed by the American Pressmen in Peking. The American missionary is ever conveniently near urging the the Chinese on. The word Republic is a charm at the present moment, and its constant use makes the Chinese believe that the Americans are their only true friends. They forget how their countrymen are despised, insulted, humiliated, and persecuted in America. They humbly follow their guide. Japan is only separated from China by a narrow strip of water. Our interests are predominant there. Why don't the Japanese people do something to arouse the officials from their slumber to a realisation of the position?

SCIENTIFIC NOTES.

In the chemistry school of Cornell University, there is a list of the seven wonders of the modern world. These are The Panama Canal, aeroplanes, antitoxins, synthetic chemistry, wireless telegraphy, the telephone and radium. Six of the seven wonders owe their origin to the French, and exception is taken to giving Edison the credit of the telephone, the invention belonging to Graham Bell of Philadelphia in 1876. A Paris contemporary which takes this exception gives to Edison the credit of constructing the first phonograph in 1878, but claims that the idea belongs to a Frenchman—Charles Cros who was born at Fabrezan (Aude) in 1848, and died in Paris in 1888. He communicated his idea to the Academy of Sciences on April 30, 1877, and it was read at a sitting of that body on December 3 of that year. Cros described under the name of "paleophone," an apparatus similar to the phonograph, for which Edison took out a patent six weeks later. The name of Charles Cros, we learn, is to be found in the "Anthologie des humoristes frangais contemporains."

At Toledo, recently, in the presence of the authorities and the representatives of various aeronautical societies, a memorial of J. Bartolome Lorenzo de Gusmao has been inaugurated. It is claimed for him that he was the precursor of aviation. He was born in 1685 at Santos, in Brazil, and died November 19, 1724, in Spain. The son of a surgeon and brother of a celebrated Portuguese statesman, Alexandro de Gusmao Bartolome entered the Jesuit Order as an engineer, to which he added the pursuits of a scholar and mechanic. He constructed a flying machine, of which the Portuguese writer, Freire de Carvalho, has made mention, although he excuses himself from describing it on the ground that it was too complicated. Other writers have gone into particulars, but they cannot be relied upon for they differ in important details.

One writer describes Bartolome's apparatus as having a wicker car, the motive power being due to hot air passing through many tubes. Others indicate that magnetism or electricity took the place of air. If this be so, the idea of Bartolome bears a closer resemblance to modern aeroplanes than did the aerostat of the brothers Montgolfier, eighty years later. Gusmao made his first ascent with success in 1709, at Lisbon, in the presence of King John V. He obtained Royal protection for his invention and a pension of 600,000 reis. Henceforth he was known as "O Voador," the flying man. But the inventor fell foul of the Portuguese Inquisition. He abandoned his aerial researches and devoted himself to naval construction. But this was not enough. He was expelled from the Academy, and found refuge in Spain, where he died in obscurity either at Seville or Toledo.

M. Charles Deperet, the dean of the Faculty of Sciences in the University of Lyons, has, for some years, been engaged in paleontologic researches in the pliocene basin of Seneze. In his researches M. Deperet has come across some important remains of a great feline, Machairodus crenatidens Fabrini, characterised by its size, which is bigger than the lion of to-day. Another characteristic is its great canine crenelated teeth. Along with this giant species was another Machirodus, the cultridens, of the size of a panther. This association, we learn, is no rarity in the higher pliocene districts of France and Italy. During his investigations M. Deperet has come across traces of a great antelope, allied to an African species.

In the "Revue Scientifique", M. Camille Saint Saens contributes some interesting observations upon the blindness of the snail. He tells us that when the snail is moving towards an obstacle, it proceeds until it can be reached by the tentacles. It does not turn back, but makes a second reconnaissance with the same effect. This is repeated a third time, and then the snail, convinced of the presence of some obstacle, changes its itinerary. The black point which terminates the tentacle, and which is connected with a long filament, withdraws itself more quickly than does the tentacle itself. It retreats into the organ, soon to reappear.

When the snail meets with a gap, it extends itself as far as it can beyond its shell, and seems in every sense to be searching for the place of support which it is seeking in inclining as far as possible its tentacles. It only decides to retrace its way when it is convinced of the impossibility of doing otherwise. It remains to be explained, M. Saint Saens adds, why the black spot in which the microscope has revealed the complicated structure of an eye is of use only for feeling, and not for vision. It is an organ "en formation ou en regression?" In any case it is an embarrassing fact for the theory that there is nothing in nature which is useless.

The 600,000 sportsmen in France who take out permits yearly for shooting, game are much alarmed at the slaughter of birds caused by the lighthouses. Belle Isle alone accounts for 3,200 victims. It seems that the slaughter of birds has greatly increased during the past twenty years, and it is particularly noticeable since the introduction of powerful electric lights, which are to be found upon the coast. It is estimated that millions of birds disappear annually in this way, and among them are the many birds of passage. The various cynegetic societies are alarmed at this state of affairs, and the Saint Hubert Club has given practical effect to its inquietude by offering a valuable prize to anyone who shall discover a means to protect birds against the malign fascination of the electric phares. Many projects have been received, and the club is not without hope that a satisfactory solution of the trouble will be found.

There is little doubt that there has of late years been a marked increase in the number of medical practitioners who grasp the facts that there is a direct relation between psychology and medicine, that nervous disorders not depending upon organic disease are susceptible of improvement by suggestive therapeutics, and that the time has come for applied psychology to take its place in the medical curriculum and as an adjunct in routine treatment. Such systematic teaching is all the more necessary, because the characteristic conservatism of the profession in Great Britain has for so many years practically ignored the value of the investigations that beginning with the "sixties" have been carried on by their European brethren. On the one hand, a wide field has been left for the activities of the quacks and all who thrive upon the ignorant hopes of the credulous. On the other hand, the work of Freud, Jung, Morton Prince, Forel, Boris Sidis, and Schrenck-Notzing, to name but a few, is unknown to the many. It is of the greatest importance to the public and to the profession that an authoritative opinion should be given as to the value of hypnotic treatment, and the particular types of problems to the solution of which it may contribute.

It is true that experts may differ. In one decade a Freud may advocate hypnosis, and in the next he may change his opinion as to its value. But on the part of most of those who have studied psychological methods of treatment in cases in which ill-health is connected with some functional nervous disturbance, there is no shadow of doubt that, even without the induction of hypnotic sleep, excellent results may be obtained. The latest addition to the literature of the subject is Dr. Felkin's translation of Dr. Hilger's "Hypnosis and suggestion, their Nature, Action, Importance, and Position among Therapeutic Agents." Apart from the historical sketch by which the volume is prefaced, Dr. Hilger confines himself in the main to the results of his own research and therapeutic experience. It is primarily written for the practitioner, the student, and the jurist, but there is little in it that is beyond the grasp of the intelligent layman. Dr. Hilger is the friend and pupil of Oskar Vogt, who, in his turn, was the pupil of the great alienist Forel. With such credentials he offers this book, the result of six years' labour, to the public with the hope that it may serve "in a modest way to extend the comprehension of the methods of hypnotic and suggestive treatment, and the value these have in the hands of the physician."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS:—Are you broken in your best by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep, by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other cause. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by medicine dealers everywhere

A Working Housewife

Nervous Depression, Neuralgia, Sleeplessness—
A cheerful, bright way of looking at things, a brisk activity which easily enables her to do almost as much as two ordinary persons, are some of the immediate benefits Mrs. Parker derived from Phosferine. Like most hard-working mothers, Mrs. Parker never found time to look after herself, and, as is always the case, suddenly broke down under the strain of endless household activities. Sudden noises caused her to tremble in feeble distress, gloomy fears assailed her, neuralgia and sleeplessness tortured her nerves relentlessly, and it was from this depth of misery that Phosferine raised Mrs. Parker. That this immediate effect was achieved by two doses of Phosferine, and Mrs. Parker's cure made permanent by a continuance of the tonic, demonstrates that with the aid of Phosferine any husband can save his wife from innumerable distresses.
Positively Cured and Prevented.
Mrs. A. Parker, 3, Linden Grove, Nunhead, writes:—"I got into a fearfully low nervous state through working too hard and overtaxing my strength. Any loud noise or a sharp knock at the door would throw me into a state of trembling and helplessness. I was always imagining all kinds of evils, and worrying about trifles. Neuralgia racked me with pain day and night, and prevented me from obtaining any rest. I got so worn and dejected that I could have cried, out of sheer misery. My husband persuaded me at last to take some Phosferine, and the effect was simply marvellous; the pains not only ceased, but I have had no return since. It seemed more like magic than anything else that a few drops of Phosferine could produce such a change. I kept on with it, and I began to gain strength; the neuralgia disappeared for good, the nervousness, dejection, and worry left me, and now I feel quite well."—Nov. 17, 1911.

DR. PROSSER JAMES,

"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE,

Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, London.

"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that in the qualities of it is a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease accompanied with Consumption."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,

Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.

"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. WHITMORE,

Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, London.

"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and regimical properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination.

Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with Dr. DE JONGH'S Patent Capsule impressed on the top with Dr. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co., and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures. VETARZO BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD

This remarkable compound, the latest discovery of modern times for all phases of brain and nerve wreckage and exhaustion, sleeplessness, tremblings, palpitation nervous dyspepsia, low spirits, mental and bodily prostration, muscular and local weakness, general and nervous debility, faulty nutrition, premature decay or deficiency of the vital forces, impaired vitality, harassing dreams, night disturbances, sudden startings, dimness of sight, defective hearing, loss of memory, inability to perform the various duties of life, or to enjoy its pleasures, restlessness that can settle to nothing, irritability of temper, female complaints, hysteria, painful periods, backache, bearing down sensations, nervous headache, wasting disease, night sweats, &c., whether induced by worry, overwork, unhealthy climate, dissipation, excesses, or other influences incidental to the wear and tear and haste or overstrain of modern life. Bracing up the system generally, it gives tone to the exhausted nerves, arrests all weakening wasting discharges, restores the failing energies, and imparts new life and vigour to those who had so recently seemed played out, "used up," and valueless.

VETARZO BLOOD MEDICINE

Never before was there anything like it, nor can its marvellous properties ever be equalled in all cases of poorness, impurity, or other imperfection of the blood from whatever cause arising. No sooner is it imbibed into the system than it permeates and penetrates to the minutest capillaries, overcoming and expelling the virus of disease, wheresoever and in whatsoever form met with; removing all blotches, pimples, scurf, scurvy, scrofulous and glandular swellings, discolorations, roughness and unsightly patches, &c. Its effects are almost magical in the treatment of gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, pains and swellings of the joints, discharges, blood poison, secondary symptoms, eczema, leprosy, psoriasis, bad legs, bad breasts, abscesses, ulcers, wounds, sores, goitre or Derbyshire neck, it improves the general health, and quickly removes lung-standing bronchitis, asthma, and hacking straining, spasmodic cough, too often the precursor of consumption.

CAUTION.—Ask for "VETARZO Brain and Nerve Food," or "VETARZO Blood Medicine," whichever is required, and see that you get them, as unprincipled vendors often try to palm off inferior preparations (usually their own manufacture), for the sake of extra profit. Price in England, 2/9. Every genuine bottle of these medicines bears the British Government Stamp with the words "VETARZO REMEDIES" impressed thereon, in white letters on a red ground. Registered Trade Mark, "VETARZO."
